Up to Speed: Tax changes

An overview of tax changes while going into RRSP season

FISCAL UPDATE

BY JAMIE GOLOMBEK

Need a little tax tutorial before plunging into another RRSP season? Bring yourself up to speed on last year's tax changes with this succinct overview.

TAX BRACKETS AND PERSONAL TAX CREDITS

On October 30, 2007, as part of the federal government's "mini-budget," the Conservatives announced that the lowest bracket (income up to $37,178) would be dropped to 15% from 15.5%, retroactive to January 1, 2007.

There was also a continuation of full inflation indexing of the federal tax brackets. The updated brackets are as follows:

Range	Rate
$0 - $37,178	15%

$37,178 - $74,357	22%
$74,357 - $120,887	26%
$120,887+	29%

Note that the above rates are federal tax brackets; each province other than Alberta (which has adopted a flat tax) also has its own set of brackets, which may vary significantly from the federal numbers.

Maximum CPP contributions are $1,989.90, while the maximum employment insurance premium is $720. The year's maximum pension-able earnings (YMPE) is up $1,600 to $43,700. The maximum annual RRSP contribution limit is up to $19,000 (from $18,000 in 2006).

As part of the mini-budget, the government announced that the basic personal amount, as well as the spousal or partner amounts, would be increased to $9,600 from $8,929.

The March 2007 federal budget introduced a new Child Tax Credit calculated on a base amount of $2,000 per child under the age of 18. The credit can be claimed on the 2007 tax return by either spouse or partner and is not income-tested.

PENSION SPLITTING

This is the first year that the new pension-splitting rules come into play that allow someone receiving pension income to split up to half of that income with his or her spouse or common-law partner. This is accomplished using the new CRA Form T1032.

So, does this spell the end of spousal RRSPs? Not if you still want to pension-split before age 65.

RESP CHANGES

Last year's federal budget also eliminated the annual RESP contribution limit and, instead, increased the lifetime limit to $50,000 per beneficiary (from $42,000) and increased the annual Canada Education Savings Grant (CESG) by $100 to $500 per year per beneficiary. If the beneficiary has carry-forward CESG room from prior years (retroactive to 1998), the maximum CESG that will be paid in one year is now $1,000.

RRSP DEADLINE FOR CLIENTS TURNING 71

The RRSP conversion deadline has been increased to age 71 from 69. Individuals who turned 71 in 2007 have only until December 31, 2007, to make their final RRSP contributions. Since someone who turns 71 in 2007 must convert his or her RRSP either into a RRIF or an annuity by the end of the year, this individual does not have the additional 60 days to make his or her 2007 RRSP contribution.

DONATION TAX SHELTERS

Tax shelters are most heavily marketed during the last few weeks of the year, so caution your clients who may be approached by tax shelter promoters. Last summer, the CRA issued a warning about donation tax shelters, saying, "If it sounds too good to be true, don't fall for it. Taxpayers need to know that the CRA is auditing all tax shelter gifting arrangements."

To date, the CRA has audited over 26,000 individuals who have participated in these tax shelters, and, as a result, about $1.4 billion in claimed donations has been denied. The CRA will soon complete audits of another 20,000 taxpayers, involving close to $550 million in donations, and is about to begin auditing another 50,000 taxpayers who have participated in tax shelter gifting arrangements.

Be sure clients get independent legal and tax advice before investing in any new tax donation scheme.

BEWARE THE SINGLETON SHUFFLE

If you've got clients who have used a Singleton-type plan to replace non-deductible debt with tax-deductible debt, they may want to pay close attention to the March 2007 General Anti-Avoidance Rule (GAAR) decision in Lipson (2007 FCA 113) where the Federal Court of Appeal shut down a Singleton-type of tax planning arrangement, calling it "abusive." In October, the Supreme Court of Canada granted leave and will hear the case on April 23, 2008. Stay tuned.

EXERCISE CAUTION WITH JOINT OWNERSHIP

Clients who insist on re-registering their accounts as "joint with right of survivorship" with adult children ought to pay close attention to two recent Supreme Court of Canada decision cases, Pecore v Pecore and Madsen Estate v Saylor, decided in May 2007. Each case involved a dispute about who was the "true" owner of joint investment account assets. In each case, true ownership was called into question by survivors once the parent passed away. AER
